Conference Concept

User Conference Danish Center for Scientific Computing

Date/Time: 1. April 2008; 11:00 – 18:15
Joint Dinner at 19:00 hosted by DCSC

Venue: Technical University of Denmark, Oticon Salen
Lunch and dinner will be served in Glassalen

The conference target group is the present as well as future users of Scientific Computing (SC) in Denmark.

The aim of conference is to stimulate exchange of experience within the use of Scientific Computing in Danish research, to discuss science that uses Scientific Computing, as well as to identify which challenges Danish Scientific Computing faces within the foreseeable future.

We aim for a scientific conference, not a computer technical one, where we will discuss state-of-the-art utilisation of Scientific Computing using a number of case stories. The conference will hopefully identify new possibilities which will form the future Danish and international use of Scientific Computing as an increasingly important general-purpose research infrastructure. We will look at Scientific Computing problems and how they are solved, new methods within modelling, simulation and management of very large datasets. We will look at virtual research organisations and there special need for and demands on High Performance Computing installations, within a number of research themes.

All DCSC grant holders are expected to come with there research teams and students, and show posters about there research. For this purpose we have arranged for a good poster session area and long breaks.

Registration:

Registration before 18 March 2008 is obligatory, and will cost each attendee the symbolic sum of DKK 300. Please make your registration by doing the following two things:

- Transferring DKK 300 to our bank: Registration no.: 3001; Account no.: 5775280, quoting your e-mail address, as reference ID.
- Sending an e-mail, with full contact information, to info@dcsc.dk, with the subject line "DCSC User Conference 2008".

DCSC will serve lunch as well a conference dinner at the end of a hopefully very insightful day.

Conference Venue: Technical University of Denmark, Oticon Salen
